ITEM OF INTEREST INFORMATION AND MANAGEMENT SUPPORT STAFF

WHO MAKES THE RULES?

Who makes the rules around here anyway? Within the Agency, the development of regulatory issuances is designed to be a cooperative effort by regulations initiators and coordinators who iron out differences and work toward eventual adoption of new or revised issuances.

Who are the initiators? They can be anyone. Sometimes the tablets come down from Mount Sinai or the Oval Office and we respond accordingly. Or sometimes the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) or the General Services Administration (GSA), or the like, will promulgate a rule that applies to Federal Agencies. To the extent that security and operational considerations allow, the Agency will usually adopt a regulation based on that rule. But often the initiator is an individual at the working level who sees the need for regulatory issuances. It could even be a person at the loading dock who notices that things keep getting delivered to the wrong place. With a little help from the component coordinator, an announcement can be drafted or updated to specify what addresses should be given out for deliveries and that information could be disseminated.

STAT What kind of regulations do we have? We've got HRs HNs, FNs, HHBs, LIs, LNs, EBs and division or staff STAT issuances. Sound confusing? It doesn't have to be. Here's help: STAT HR - Headquarters directives of a continuing nature to prescribe policy, establish organization, delegate authority and assign responsibilities. HN - Headquarters STAT b. Agency notices to disseminate transitory information, not to be used to convey permanent directives. - Headquarters STAT C. handbooks to supplement regulations by providing detailed procedures to carry out policies. LI - Logistics Instructions; directives of a continuing d. nature, issued by OL.

- LN Logistics Notices; directives of a temporary nature, e. issued by OL.
- f. EB - Employee Bulletins (Agency-wide).
- g. Staff or Division Instructions and Notices

ADMINISTRATIVE INTERNAL USE ONLY

WHO MAKES THE RULES?

Who are the coordinators? They're the people who interface with their respective components and the Regulatory Policy Division (OIS/RPD) and the component registries to get the issuances published. They also propose policies, announcements and revisions or assist components in preparing the wording of such. Coordinators also ensure that all appropriate components have a chance to review the wording before publishing, and that any necessary approvals are obtained.

For the Office of Logistics, coordination of regulatory issuances is handled by the Information and Management Support Staff (IMSS). If you think a regulation is needed or that one should be revised, let us know by calling
